The following from the Crite of last evening is another evidence of the inefferency of the police force, to which The Republican has repeatedly called attention:

The question is being asked now by the residents of East Washington if they are to be denied police protection. Fernsylvania avenue, in the neighborhood of Wallach School Building, is threnged almost every night with ruthanly and indolent negroes, who make it their business to insult passers by. It is not infrequent that ladies are grossly insulted by these beasts. Monday night last Mr. Thomas Cross, a prominent merchent, while passing along Pennsylvania avenue, near Sixth street east, observed a burly negro folwing a lady, and, thinking he meant mischief, followed on behind. The black rases), thinking no one was near, caught the lady around the waist and hugged her. Mr. Cross rushed up to the scoundrel and dealt him a blow with his cane on his black bead. The blow did not burt him much, and, releasing his hold of the lady, he struck Mr. Cross streams attracted the attention of a number of people, who pursued the negro, but were unable to catch him. Cannot the police of East Washington arrest some of these black secondrels, and lave then beaut up for vagraency?

CLOSING OF THE CONVENTION. A Pleasant Trip to Mount Vernon Under Charge of

Dan Jenowitz-An Original Hatchet Presentation-Relic of the Immortal George.

The session of the Traveling Passenger Agents' Association at the Metropolitan Hotel yesterday morning was very short. A special vote of thanks to Mr. John O'Loughlin, of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad, was adopted, for his cour-tesy in attending to the wants of the ladies of the party. Mr. E. C. Blockman, of Buffalo, N. Y., was appointed the grator to deliver the address at the next annual convention, which meets at Montrest, Canada. The committee of arrangements for the Canada. The committee of arrangements for the pear ISS2 was then appointed, and consists of Mesars. H. Price, of Montreal, and J. W. Reynolds and A. H. Webster, both of Ruffalo, N. Y. The following gentlemen compose the executive committee for the ensuing year: Mr. James Timmons, Pennsylvania Road, residence in Harrisburg, Pa.; Mr. J. H. Larrabee, Ohlo and Mussissippi Road, residence in Cincinnati, Ohio: Mr. D. McDonald, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Load, residence in Louisville, Ky.; Mr. J. V. Horn, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Road, residence in New York city; Mr. W. W. Donayant, New York, Pittsburg and Ohio Road, residence in Pittsburg, Pa; J. H. A committee consisting of Messrs. O'Brien, A. E. Lippincott, and II. Forum was appointed to draft suitable resolutions returning the thanks of the convention to those persons and organizations at whose hands they had received courtesies. The committee performed its duty in a satisfactory manner, and the resolutions reported by them were unanimously adopted, after which the convention adjourned size die. Mr. D. W. Janowitz, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, immediately took charge of the party, a large number of whom were ladies, and escorted them to the steamer Corcoran

A TRIP TO MOUNT VERNON. The weather was all that could be desired, and the entire party were in excellent spirits. Major Blake left nothing undone on the boat, nor Colonei Hollingsworth at the grounds, that might add to the enjoyment of the occasion. After pausing a few moments at the temb in reverential awe, the party proceeded to the mansion and listened to the histories of the several rooms as retailed by the guide with marked attention. Of course all was looked upon with curiosity, but the one thing that seemed to interest some of the married men of the sarty more especially was the desk used by George simself, with the secret drawers. Orders for this kind of desk may be looked for at several points along the trunk lines. While the party were en-joying themselves in various ways Colonel Hol-lingsworth stepped forward

Here an informal meeting was held, and a resolution of thanks to Colonel Hollingsworth, Major Blake, the commander of the boat, and D. W. Janowitz, the genial agent of the Pennsylvania Central Railway, was adopted with enthusiasm. All had a good time, and will long remember the meeting of 1881.

CHRISTIANA TAYLOR CONFESSES. she Mardered the Fisher Children With a

All doubt as to who committed the murler of the Fisher children Saturday was dispelled yesterday by the confession of Christiana Taylor, the old colored woman suspected of the crime. Captain Vernon visited the Second Precinct Staon vesterday on his daily tour of inspection, and before leaving went back to the cell to see the old woman. She asked him if Mr. Archibald White was about the building, and, upon receiving an affirmative reply, said: "You and him come in the cell and I will tell you all about the murder." Captain Vernon brought Mr. White, and together they entered the cell and seated them selves on either side of the prisoner. Captain Vernon said to her: "Auntie, if you did not kill the children don't say so, for you don't want to onviet yourseif."

The old woman replied: "I did kill them hough, and I am tired of keeping it to myself." The substance of her story was that Saturday afternoon she went up to Mr. Fisher's to return the washboard. On her way up the hill she picked up a piece of wood, probably two feet long and as thick saher wrist. The children were playing at the back of the house, and she walked up behind the girl and struck her on the head. felling her to the ground. Then she struck the boy and knocked him down. She continued to beat them till she was tired, and then she went into the house and put the washboard where it was afterward found. Being asked her motive for the crime, she said she could not tell; the devil got into her in some way and she could not beln herself She dealed emphatically beating the children with the washboard or axe, and said that the latter was lying near the woodpile when she left the remises. She further stated that after the chill on the woodpile back of the house. At the conciusion of her story Captain Vernon asked:
"Auntie, is this statement the truth?"
The old woman put her hand on her breast and said: "It is, from my heart," sitment to jail had already been prepared nd left by the coroner, in case it might be needed, and after the old woman had finished her confeson she and her daughter Rose were placed in a ragon and taken to jail. Her grandson, Thomas off, was released from custody, as there was othing to connect him in any way with the crime. Officers were sent out to Mr. Fisher's farm to make a search for the piece of wood with which the rime was committed. They continued their inestigations till it was too dark to see anything, FAILED TO FIND THE STICK. Every inch of ground in the vicinity of the house was carefully gone over, but to no avail. In sub-stantiation of the old woman's confession it is stated that the dogs backed at her Saturday for the first time in about two weeks. During the pea sea-son she was in the habit of taking pieces of bread and meat to the dog kennelled near whereshe worked, and finally succeeded in making friends with it.

When she began to best the children it is supposed that it flew at her and scared her off in an opposite direction from the one by which she came. This would account for her appearing to the men in the field on the east instead of the west side of the house. At one time the dog came so close to her that she stopped, picked up a piece of wood, and scared the animal away by throwing at it. Among he police the story is rapidly guining ground that the old woman is incane, and that she is not re-

A Railroad Company Wins Its Case. The suit of Messrs, John E. Norris and Thomas S. McNeir against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for $45 damages each was tried before Justice Bundy, in the Circuit Court room, yester-day afternoon. The case arose from a refusal on the part of a conductor to receive two return tickcts from Washington to Berkeley Springs, Va., because they had not been restamped at Sir John's Run, where the plaintiffs boarded the train. They were each compelled to pay the regular fare, $1.05, which they did, with the remark that they would sue the company for its action. After a lengthy array of witnesses had been examined on both aiden the case was given to the jury, which failed to agree, eleven being in favor of giving damages and one against. Six of the jury favored making

Diamonds and Gorgeous Dresses-A Rell-

CAPE MAY, Aug. 11,-Diamonds to the right of us, diamonds to the left of us, and dia-monds all around—such a shining and a plashing one's eyes become positively daszled, and we begin to wonder if they really are such costly thingsafter all. The homelier the woman, generally, the larger the diamonds. A fine place to see the ladies here on dress parade is at the depot Saturday evening. waiting for the train to come in which is to bring down from the city husband, lover, or friend to pend Sunday. Usually the most becoming attire is donned, and all the other pretty little adornments added, and without bonnets they gather at the depot. A dress suitable for the ball-room is hardly a proper one to wear through the streets or to such a public place; but it is no uncommon TO SEE DAINTY TOILETS of rich white silk, adorned with lace, flowers, and jewels, worn to the depot. Albatrons seems to be the favorite material this season for evening dresses, and lovely costumes are seen of shades of pink, blue, cream, lavendar, and pearl white. They are very becoming to a young face and girl-ish figure, and are really beautiful, without being at all expensive. At Congress Hall the other day I saw a gorgeous costume worn by an exceedingly small and plain-looking woman. It was a combination suit of purple silk, brocsded with old gold and old gold surah. There was a long train, which was trimmed with ruchings of the surah. The front width was made of the brocade and elaborately trimmed with rich white Spanish lace, studded with large pearl beads. The ruff

ARGUND THE THROAT was finished with the same lace, which also extended, vest shape, down the waist and each side of the front width. Imagine such a dress appearing in the full glare of the afternoon upon the piazza of a hotel, and the wearer, after sweeping up and down long enough to show it off, quietly seating herself in a common painted chair with the crowd to enjoy the sea breeze and the afternoon concert Fine dressing at this place is not confined to the mammas, for the little children are dressed in the most extravagant manner, and take part in the hops with as much case as their elders do. I saw a little girl the other evening, not more than eight years of age, dressed in white satin, which was beautifully embroidered in wreaths of rare flow-ers in the natural colors, making a costume ex-tremely rich and striking.

two miles from here, has not succeeded as a re-ligious summer resort, as it was hoped it would do, and the losses were so great last year that the stockholders have been obliged to withdraw the restrictions regulating the hotels and to allow them all the privileges usually granted first-class hotels. The largest hotel there has introduced music, dancing, billiards, and ten-pins, and at present is doing quite a good business. The tem-ple erected there, at a cost of several thousand dollars, was taken down, sold for $250, and removed to this place, where it is now doing duty as a lager-beer saloon and summer garden. They tell a good story here of the experience of two young fellows who came down from the city quite late the other evening. They took rooms in a cottage and, feeling very warm and dusty, when about to retire for the night concluded to slip down to the beach and take a dip in the surf. As nearly every one had retired, they

DIRROBED AND DONNED their linen dusters and started for the beach, tak-ing the precaution to lock the front door and carry the key with them. They sported in the waves, -floated, ducked, and swam-little dreaming of what was before them. After remaining in the water until they were tired, they prepared for their return to the house, when, lo! the key could not be found. They searched diligenity for it, but it was buried in the treacherous sand and irretriev-ably lost. There was nothing left for them to do but to go back and awaken the landlady by thump ing upon the door. She came to their rescue, but as she had no key, the door could not be opened. and the only thing to be done was to have them enter the house through a window. Here another peril met them, for the room was occupied by sev-eral ladies; but, after hiding the latter behind blankets and clearing the way, the unfortunate young men reached their room in safety, vowing it was the last time they would ever venture upon so hazardous an undertaking.

AMONG THE DISTINGUISHED GUESTS at Congress Hall is General G. R. Paul, of Washington. His great affliction—having lost both eyes in the Union service during the war—makes him an object of great interest. His wife and daughter are with him. Senator J. B. Groome and family have apartments at the Stockton House. Colonel Corkhill fits back and forth between this place and Washington. His wife is here for the benefit of her health, and the Colonel devotes all the time he can spare to her. I took a ride the other morning to Sewell's Point; we were whirled over the marshes by a dummy, and the great speed and strong sea breeze almost took the breath away. The road is well patronized and is paying haudsomely this season. Yesterday durand strong sea breeze almost took the breath away. The road is well patronized and is paying handsomely this season. Yesterday, during the bathing hour, a steamer, with sails set, came in almost to the breakers, and while passing the different groups of bathers raised her flag and blew her whistle, which salute was returned by frantic shouts from the surf. The Knights Templars ball is to be the grand event of this week, and it is estimated that ten thousand visitors will arrive during the week.

He has for many years taken an active part in the political affairs of his country, having once been President of the Republic of Nicaragua and several times commander of her armies for the remaion of the Central American republics. He represented his country here during Dichanan's administration. His re-cent appointment commenced in November of last year. He was a man of great learning and a high order of intelligence. His death was most unexpected. During the day he had been out visiting, and returned home in very good spirits, chatting cheerfully with those around him. At about four o'clock he

She found him seated by the window, with his head resting on his arm, his other hand holding a newspaper, on its arm, no other hand hording a newspaper, which he had evidently been reading. Noticing that he appeared strangely, Mrs. Blancoe called for help. Her father immediately responded, and on undertaking to raise the General found him dead, and quite cold and rigid. Complete History of the Selection and Purchase the Ground-Improvements that Have Been Made-Who Are Already In Attendance.

Washington Grove Camp, Aug. 11.—
A number of ministers and laymen being anxious to secure a camp-ground, Dr. McCauley and Rev. B. Peyton Brown made an examination of all the groves on the line of the Metropolitan Railroad which were supposed to be suitable for camp grounds, and selected a portion of ground called part of "Crabb's Fortress," belonging originally to one Cooke. At a meeting of the members held at Wesley Chapel Dr. F. Roward and William B. Woodward. by. F. Howard and William R. Woodward were appointed trustees, and requested to purchase part of the tract of land allotted to Nathan Partinger Cooke, containing, inclusive, of the land occupied by the Metropolitan Railroad, about 26714 acres of land. The ground was purchased and the first meeting was held in 1873, and the property, under the anthority of the court, was accordingly conveyed to them in 1874. They then proceeded to improve it, and afterward bought three more acres to protect themselves from the public road extending on the camp ground. They hold now about 268 acres, the most of which is in wood. The Grove is situated in Monteomery The Grove is situated in Montgomery County, Maryland, twenty-one miles from Wash-ington city, immediately on the line of the Metro-politan branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. supply of the best water, and is situated in the
